THE WEATHER IN SANTA ANA PUEBLO THIS TIME OF YEAR

- Expect typical summer weather in Santa Ana Pueblo, NM. Daytime temperatures will generally be in the 90's Fahrenheit (30's Celsius), and may reach upwards of 100 degrees Fahrenheit (38+ Celsius) on July 12 and 13. Nighttime temperatures will drop to the mid-60s (16-18 Celsius), which means you may need a rebozo or light sweater. The forecast currently calls for mostly sunny skies with occasional clouds in the evenings. There is a slight chance of thunderstorms or light rain on July 14 due to the North American Monsoon, which can bring brief periods of increased humidity and precipitation to an otherwise very dry climate. Winds will generally be light, ranging from 5 to 10 mph, shifting from southwest to southeast as the week progresses. For more information go to National Weather Service or Weather.gov.

LA RED CONFERENCIA

WEAVING LA RED: 2024 THREADS OF LA REVOLUCIÓN

- Evenings, and air conditioned meeting rooms can feel quite chilly. For your comfort, please be sure to pack a sweater and/or light jacket.
- If your children are traveling with you, please be sure to dress them in layers in case weather conditions shift, or in case air conditioned rooms feel chilly.

WHAT ELSE?

PLEASE TELL US YOUR COMFORT LEVEL WITH “CLOSENESS”

When you register for the Conferencia on-site, please tell us about your comfort level with people getting physically close to you, including whether or not you want La Red colleagues to hug you (or not). To tell us about your boundaries with this, please select your comfort level with these behaviors by selecting a red dot for no physical touch/closeness, yellow for limited closeness with no hugging, and green for giving permission for others to get close to you, and in some cases hug you.

PHOTOGRAPHY NOTICE

Weaving La Red: 2024 Threads of La Revolucion will be documented in visuals (both photography and video) that tell the story our Red by world renowned photojournalist, Jimena Peck. Please consent to being photographed and/or videotaped when you complete your on site registration.

STAY HEALTHY

While we are not asking conference participants to wear masks, we do ask that all conference participants commit to respecting anyone who wishes and/or needs to wear a face-mask during the Conferencia. La Cocina will have KN95 masks available at the Mountain View Foyer Conferencia registration area for anyone who needs or wants one.

PACK AND WEAR SUNSCREEN!

Drink lots of water. Remember that Santa Ana Pueblo is at 5,250 feet (1600 meters) elevation. That's really high! It will make you super woozy if you don't drink enough water and take it easy on those high-altitude runs.

NEED MEDICAL ATTENTION?

Please let us know if you experience illness and need medical care during the conference. Our staff will have a list of urgent care facilities should you need medical attention. Of course, if you become seriously ill, please call 9-1-1 for immediate emergency assistance.

STILL HAVE QUESTIONS?

Reach out to our awesome meeting planner, Malliron Hodge at mhodge@lacocinahome.org. You may also call or text our main office telephone number at 970.556.9434.

Thank you for joining us July 11-14 at our second annual La Red Conferencia! Look for our electronic version of the final conference program to arrive in your email inbox on Friday, July 5. Until then, read-up! This preliminary version of the program and general information folio is filled with wonders, and you won't want to miss any juicy bit of information that may help answer your most burning questions.
